As I speak it is the 22nd December 2021. It may be after that when you see this but it won't be before. In this video, my 300th and my Christmas and New Year Special, I'm going to look back at the last two years and forward to the year ahead – and predict the enemy's plans for 2022.

I've been warning for over six months now that, whatever happened, they'd want to introduce more restrictions around now. I've always said they'll get heavy after Christmas when we are all feeling depressed by the end of the holiday. In a psyop – which this is – you aim to hit the enemy – that's us – hardest when they're most vulnerable. There are few holidays to look forward to. Jobs are at risk. As predicted a long time ago, mortgage rates and inflation are going up and up.

The lies and the lunacy continue; deceptions and threats are as flimsy as a house of cards. And every bit as vulnerable. They are getting increasingly desperate – a sign that we are winning the war. The evidence proving that covid-19 is a fraud is accumulating rapidly. And those responsible for this coup are finding it increasingly difficult to hide the truth. More and more people are waking up – and staying awake.

Government people say that 5% of hospital beds are occupied with people who have covid. They ignore the fact that in winter it's common for 30% of hospital beds to be occupied by people with flu. That makes the ordinary flu six times as dangerous as covid. I believe that one or two have died with omicron. I am sceptical about whether any not already seriously ill have died of it.

New figures from the British Government show that there are not just five million people who haven't had their first jab. The real figure is 23.5 million – that means that less than two thirds of the population has had any jab at all. A study published in the European Journal of Epidemiology confirms that increases in covid-19 cases are completely unrelated to levels of vaccination. The study was conducted in 68 countries worldwide. The data shows that areas where many people have been jabbed continue to have significant cases of covid. Indeed, it seems that areas where there is a high percentage of jabbed individuals have more cases of covid-19 per one million people. The conclusion is that the people being jabbed are spreading covid. Here is yet more evidence proving the danger of the covid jabs.

In Italy, the Government has had to start hiring unjabbed doctors to keep their health care alive. In the UK, the Government will back off from sacking unjabbed doctors on or after April 2022.

The enemy is losing control of the war and that means we're winning it. We have to hold the line on the big issues – ignoring the jabs and ignoring the mask mandates. We'll win the war, not through lawyers – who are dealing with a corrupt judiciary and a media which won't report the news even if they win – but by ignoring their rules and their advice, by spreading the news by word of mouth, by bombarding the mainstream media with the truth, but not giving them any money, by distributing leaflets and by sending videos and articles to those who are so terrified that they're still buying their government's lies.

We must never forget the British MPs who voted to introduce vax passports (thereby dividing the country), compulsory jabs for NHS workers (why isn't that assault?) and mandatory masks when everyone with two neurons to rub together knows they do more harm than good and are purely decorative.

And we should never forget the celebrities who spoke out in favour of tyranny – someone should make a list of them. Every single one has their brain in upside down or wired up by amateurs. What the hell do members of the British royal family know about the price of fish? They may be good at waving and opening cupboards but that's it. In contrast we had that stirring speech from Archbishop Carlo Maria Vigano. A much more noble man than England's Archbishop of Canterbury who is, in my view, an evil man; thoroughly ignorant and also an idiot.

This week I want to try to summarise what's happened so far since this lunacy began.

This modern day take-over started in earnest, as most of you probably know, back in the 1960s when a group of very bad people met and agreed that the world was overcrowded and that if they didn't cut the size of the population down to a level last seen in the middle of the 17th century, there soon wouldn't be enough sweets or Christmas pudding to go round.

Some of the people who decided this were very rich. A Mr Rothschild, a Mr Rockefeller and some other bankers. And some of the plotters worked for a big, international, left wing quango called the United Nations.

It seems a strange mixture of capitalist bankers and commie bureaucrats but you have to remember that there is no discernible difference between fascism and communism so they got on well together. At meal times they probably ate seaweed salad and caviar and drank lots of stuff with bubbles in it. Vimto for the commies and champagne for the bankers.

This strange bunch of evil people decided that they needed something with which they could scare the living daylights out of the world's population, in order to get them to agree to accept a totalitarian world government and a smaller global population.

Some folk suggested a good war would be a good idea. Wars have always been popular with despots. They give a chance to introduce lots of new laws and there's the added side effect that millions of people can be killed off.

But they decided that a war wasn't the best idea they could come up. For one thing, controlling a war is always tricky. There's always the risk that some mad general might forget who had made the rules. Besides, wars tend to end and they really don't kill enough people.

They needed a threat which could be used to terrify the life out of everyone.

And they came up with global warming. It wasn't a new idea, it had been around for generations, but it had everything they needed. And it was a way to make people feel so guilty that they would do anything they were told to do.

Global warming offered the evil ones, the bankers, the United Nations and a bunch of politicians, clerics and billionaires who had been recruited, a chance to change everything – and to make those changes permanent; an excuse to introduce stacks of laws that would have never normally been accepted; and a chance to terrify people around the world so much that they would do anything they were told to do – and, moreover, do it willingly and enthusiastically.

They tried out their plan by introducing a concept called recycling. They told everyone that the world was running out of cornflake boxes and yoghurt cartons and that the coming shortages would only be avoided if everyone sorted their rubbish into loads of different boxes and bags every week. It was, of course, only ever intended as an exercise in forcing people to become obedient and compliant. The boxes, and pots and other rubbish which people wasted time sorting out were just taken to a poorer country and either burnt or dumped in the street.

The people who were keenest on obeying the recycling edicts are the same people who now wear masks with enthusiasm and have every jab available.

When the global warming scam and the recycling nonsense were clearly working well the committee of evil people decided that they'd better change the name to climate change because global warming didn't really explain storms and cold weather very well.

If they called the threat man made climate change they could blame any unusual bits of weather on what was happening and blame people if there was a storm, a fire, a heat wave or a tsunami. They started fiddling the weather reports and giving names to breezes and other bits of weather so that people would take every threat very seriously.

Early on in this saga they had decided that they needed something else to spice things up a little. The global warming scam was fine for the long-term but it wasn't quite scary enough. They needed a threat with which they could terrify everyone into doing exactly what they were told to do.

They decided that some sort of pandemic would do nicely.

They started off with AIDS but that didn't work terribly well so they tried various different types of flu, honing their plan with each new threat.

By late 2019 the baddies were getting desperate. Some of the leaders of the evil conspiracy weren't getting any younger. And they needed to speed things up a bit so that they could get on with the Great Reset and the New World Order, appoint themselves to the new world government and turn their power into billions and billions of dollars for themselves.

So they decided that they'd use the ordinary flu of that winter as a major threat to mankind. Hitchcock would have called it the McGuffin – the slightly absurd but superficially believable reason for everything that was to follow.

They made up some puerile nonsense about bats and a lab in China and hired arguably the most incompetent forecaster in history to come up with some outrageous forecasts designed to terrify the waste food out of the entire world's population. He did them proud, producing astonishingly absurd predictions that made absolutely no sense at all to anyone who examined them closely. These crazy forecasts dominated thinking around the world and were reproduced ad nauseam in the media. It was clearly nonsense and I made a video calling it the coronavirus hoax. For that video, which went viral and introduced the concept that the whole thing was a hoax I was immediately demonised and lied about by Wikipedia, the corrupt encyclopaedia of lies, and Google – the search engine that found just how profitable it can be to be evil. Anyone who tells the truth is a discredited conspiracy theorist. The liars have turned language on its head. It's an old psyop trick. The Wikipedia and Google editors are the conspirators who deserve our contempt. They are so contemptible they're laughable.

I was banned from all social media and my past was eradicated and replaced with a pile of lies. Incidentally, there has recently been quite a flurry of libel cases based on lies told on social media. I hereby give notice that those who have libelled me might like to edit their tweets and so on if they don't want to lose their houses, cars and clothing.

At this point, their plan very nearly all went wrong.

In March 2020, a group of scientists appointed to advise the British Government looked carefully at this new threat and decided that it was no more dangerous than the annual flu. So they officially downgraded it! The proof is on my websites.

If the evil ones hadn't had the foresight to buy the world's mainstream media this would have been disastrous. The pandemic would have ended overnight.

But the TV stations and the newspapers ignored the experts' decision that covid-19 was just an over promoted, rebranded version of the flu and obediently cheered wildly when governments announced that they were giving themselves massive new powers to deal with this threat. They, of course, were bought with huge quantities of taxpayers' money. In my view, there isn't one mainstream newspaper, magazine, TV or radio station that is honest and on the side of its viewers.

It was the suppression of this simple truth, together with the suppression of all facts, the refusal to debate and the demonization of myself and other truth-tellers which proved to me beyond doubt that this was a serious fraud; a global coup. Never before in history have scientists not been allowed to debate a scientific issue. The BBC's stated policy was not to allow anyone questioning vaccination to be heard. That's propaganda.

Miraculously, the British Government either managed to put together a special 360 page plan in about twenty minutes or so or else they had conveniently already prepared a plan for precisely this sort of a pandemic sitting in a drawer waiting to be discovered. The new plan, which bore a striking resemblance to new plans found in government drawers all around the world, removed old-fashioned fripperies such as freedom and democracy and replaced them with a totalitarian regime with more power than Stalin ever dreamt of.

The plan to save us all from a disease which had inconveniently been officially categorised as no more dangerous than the flu, included the introduction of medically pointless global lockdowns. As a result, individuals were imprisoned in their homes, the elderly were prevented from seeing their relatives, schools were closed, essential government departments were closed and hospital departments and GP surgeries offered a dramatically reduced service.

In an unprecedented example of blatant ageism, huge numbers of the elderly were effectively denied medical care and a deliberate programme of genocide was introduced into care homes.

It was immediately apparent that the lockdowns – a torture technique devised by the CIA and previously used in prisons – would do no good whatsoever in preventing the spread of the infection and would, indeed, damage the immune systems of millions and slow or halt the development of immunity. It was also clear that the lockdowns would result in millions of people dying. In developed countries the lockdowns and closed medical services resulted in waiting lists for essential tests and treatment being extended so far ahead that millions were destined to die without ever being diagnosed or treated. This was officially welcomed by the medical establishment which later announced that cutting back on diagnoses and treatment would help save us all from global warming, the pseudo- scientific nonsense which had been devised as part of the plan to reduce the world's population to 500 million and which had become something of a cult among ignorant left wingers looking for an excuse for some breast-beating and a chance to glue themselves to motorways.

In developing countries the lockdowns resulted in mass starvation which affected hundreds of millions. These disasters were completely ignored by everyone, including by the Black Lives Matter protestors (who were too busy persuading policemen and sportsmen to kneel down, but only on one knee in the style previously reserved for supplicants appearing before a monarch, and pulling down statues of long-forgotten white heroes) to worry about black people starving to death in Africa.

Governments and their medical advisors told their citizens that they could pop out to buy approved but unspecified items of food and other essentials, but that they could not buy socks, chocolate, underwear and toiletries. Middle aged men and women living in mollycoddled luxury at our expense decided that these were luxuries. Citizens were also told that they should ensure that they remained six feet six inches away from everyone else. There was absolutely no logical reason for this since a cough or a sneeze, the only way for the flu bug to transmit itself, can travel 24 feet. It was thought, however, that forcing people to remain 24 feet apart would, although more sensible in scientific terms, be impractical on buses and in shops.

Many myths were promoted in the mainstream media. Notable among these was the absurd idea that people without symptoms might still pass on a disease they clearly hadn't got and the notion that a disease transmitted by coughing and sneezing might somehow be transmitted by handling cash. This latter nonsense was part of a greater plan to get rid of cash and replace it with digital money. Sadly, millions of very stupid people didn't understand this and thought it rather exciting and futuristic to be able to buy their morning cappuccino with sprinkles by waving a piece of plastic somewhere in the vicinity of a card reading machine.

To begin with politicians and medical advisors insisted, quite accurately, that wearing a mask was useless, no more than virtue signalling, and would do more harm than good. It was known that masks didn't stop viruses passing through them but did reduce oxygen levels, did increase carbon dioxide levels, did affect mental development in babies and children, did increase the risk of cancer spreading and did result in cases of bacterial pneumonia.

Suddenly, however, this sensible advice was reversed and governments and advisors insisted that mask wearing should be normal. There was never any evidence for this instruction but millions obediently wore their masks on trains and buses, in shops and offices and even in pubs and nightclubs. Many of these were so brainwashed that they became hysterical if they saw another human without a mask.

‘Why aren’t you wearing a mask?’ a man demanded of me the other day.

‘I’m not wearing a mask because the science shows that they don’t work,’ I replied. ‘They don’t stop infections spreading but the science shows they do reduce the amount of oxygen breathed in and they increase the amount of carbon dioxide in your body. Doctors have shown they increase the wearer’s risk of developing bacterial pneumonia and cancer. They’ve been proved to cause eye problems and dental problems and they cause serious psychological and development problems in babies and children. That’s why I don’t wear a mask. Now tell me why you wear one.’

I think he went red but it was difficult to tell because he was masked. He just turned and scurried away – probably back to his underground air raid shelter, ready for an attack from Mars or Ruritania.

The public was encouraged to believe the drug companies were going to save us with a series of hugely profitable experimental vaccines that weren’t vaccines, weren’t properly tested, didn’t stop people getting covid or passing it on but did kill or injure more people than any other drug in history. If a car, toaster, type of yoghurt or painkiller had killed a fraction of the number killed by this jab there would have been an outcry. The product would have been withdrawn and there would have been talk of arrests. But the drug companies were feted. The boss of Pfizer reported that when he entered a restaurant he received a standing ovation. These dangerous products were approved – as experimental products – by agencies which often had financial links to the drug companies themselves. The approving agency in the UK was given a huge sum of money by Bill Gates, an investor in and advocate of all sorts of vaccines. Gates, who has been accused of inappropriate behaviour, also has financial links to the BBC and The Guardian, neither of which seems to mind about his past or his alleged link with Epstein which, according to the New York Times, occurred after Epstein’s conviction. Many thought that the World Health Organisation had become his private fiefdom.

As a German MEP said: 'Pharmaceutical companies are about as interested in public health as the arms industry is in world peace'.

It was clear by late spring in 2020 that the whole project was built on propaganda, using the mainstream media to spread lies and misinformation. It seems that mathematical projections may have been fiddled to fit the requirements of the crooks planning the biggest coup in history.

The big internet channels banned anyone daring to share the truth. YouTube removed scores of my videos – simply because they contained the unacceptable truth. They banned huge numbers of videos – 14 or 15 in one day – but could never find a single inaccuracy. I still have a channel there but I haven't used it for ages because even if I put up something which has nothing to do with covid they'll take down an armful of last year's videos. I'm banned from discussing covid, or anything to do with it on YouTube. Other people can do so but I'm banned because the truth is considered too dangerous for YouTube users. Without any sense of irony they wrote to me the other day to tell me that my most popular video ever on YouTube was entitled 'Coronavirus: why did YouTube ban my video'.

Difficult though it may be for some to believe, the aim was to destroy the global economy. 'You will own nothing and be happy,' wasn't an idle boast from Schwab of the Global Economic Forum.

They meant it.

They have used every trick in the book to confuse, terrify and bewilder populations around the world. The aim was and is to destroy economies, push up inflation, push up interest rates, bankrupt home owners, wreck small businesses and force country dwellers into soul-less high rise blocks of flats. Until you understand this you won't understand anything. The rises in interest rates, inflation and oil prices were the easiest to predict. I hope those who criticised those predictions many months ago now understand why I made them. Probably not.

Oddly, the traditional flu disappeared completely but the deaths from covid were almost exactly the same as the deaths from the missing flu. The authorities exaggerated the long-term effects of the rebranded flu – their so-called long covid – and dismissed and suppressed the lethal effects of the most profitable, ineffective and dangerous treatment in history – promoting it in some cases with bare-faced lies.

The authorities manipulated the death rate from covid by counting every death as a covid death even if the individual was hit by a bus or shot by a policeman. They used a dangerous and useless test – the PCR test – to increase the official number of covid cases. Incidentally, the CDC in the US will no longer recognise the PCR test from the end of 2021 so anyone still using it now is probably still using leeches and blood-letting as treatments.

I proved, using the UK Government's own statistics, that covid had killed no more than the usual flu.

But throughout 2020 and 2021 the deaths caused by the lockdowns continued to soar. Waiting lists for investigations and treatment grew to the point where patients were doomed to die before they had a chance of being seen.

In the UK, many GPs stopped seeing patients face to face, even though the evidence showed that this led to ever more mistakes and missed diagnoses. Without a GP service, emergency departments had waiting lists of 12 hours and thousands of patients were stuck on trolleys in corridors or left dying in ambulances. By late summer 2021 the health service in the UK was killing more people than it saved as doctors devoted themselves almost exclusively to jabbing patients with an untested, unsafe, ineffective, experimental drug. And very profitable it was too – with doctors being paid a small fortune to sell their honour and their integrity. Few seem to care that there was no informed consent – as is required by law. Few cared that because aspiration wasn't allowed there was a danger that they'd squirt the stuff straight into a blood vessel. Few cared that the vaxxed would not be able to donate blood without contaminating the supplies. Few cared when they tried to ban effective remedies against the rebranded flu.

And few cared when the 15 minute wait after jabbing was abandoned in the UK – leaving patients to have their anaphylactic shock reactions on the way home.

Few cared that the vaxxed were more likely to spread infections and to create new variants – a danger to themselves and others.

Few cared that the jabs were killing and injuring thousands and that there were proven links between the jabs and heart damage, blood clots and brain damage.

As always, anyone who spoke out was demonised or ruined or both.

Every time a new variant was identified the authorities used the discovery as an excuse to push the jabs ever harder. There had never been any evidence that the jabs did what people thought they did but the evidence proving that the vaccines were killing and injuring grew every day.

The evil, insane people behind this takeover of the world and our lives continued apace because those behind it could not afford to stop. Their uninhibited dishonesty forced them ever onwards. They introduced more lockdowns, more rules and more regulations and threatened to lock up the wise who refused the jabs – or to force them out of society, to lock them up in prisons or concentration camps. The lockdowns reduced the development of natural immunity and damaged the physical and mental health of those who complied.

It became clear that those who had been vaxxed could now spread infections to the healthy – asymptomatic spread became a reality thanks to the toxic jabs. And those who had allowed themselves to be jabbed? Well, the evidence showed that they were mostly doomed to an early death. There is solid evidence, remember, that the jabs could affect their brains.

Celebrities around the world suddenly became experts on health care – recommending the jabs to one and all and criticising and abusing those who did not comply. My advice was simple: never accept health advice from someone whom you wouldn't trust to remove your appendix.

Citizens around the world were told that their health care services were in crisis, overwhelmed by covid patients. Those were all lies. Hospitals and doctors were less busy than usual and staff were rehearsing and making dance videos. There were deliberately created delays in hospitals because of government policies such as lockdowns and social distancing.

The compliant believed that wearing masks and having endless jabs would change things. But this was never the plan, of course.

Governments claimed that the restrictions imposed on society were the fault of those who refused to be jabbed.

In truth, of course, it was the other way round. The compliant were responsible for the restrictions.

And the people who have been queuing up for deadly and useless booster jabs in the UK are selfish because their stupidity will result in the fact that countless patients with cancer will have to wait years for treatment – all because doctors are spending their time earning huge fees to give covid jabs. Many patients die before they are diagnosed let alone treated. All this deliberate and it's genocide.

By pushing the booster jabs the evil ones are deliberately increasing the number who will get what they call covid and what we've proved to be the rebranded flu. The ignorant and greedy morons are jabbing the ignorant and fearful cretins because their loyalty has been bought by a bunch of psychopaths.

There have been suggestions that our relationship with our governments and their collaborators is akin to the relationship of a victim to an abuser in a human relationship. But I'm afraid it isn't. Our relationship with our government is more akin to the relationship of a victim to a cold-blooded homicidal psychopath. We aren't dealing with ordinary abusers who may change their attitudes. We are dealing with people who are more evil than most people can imagine and with millions of collaborators who don't have the brains or the courage to see what is happening. The big problem is that we don't have the time for the brainwashed to come to their senses.

Make up a list of history's most evil and cruellest dictators and you'd put Ivan the Terrible, Attila the Hun and Ghengis Khan on the list. Today, we can add Tony Blair, Bill Gates, Prince Charles, Klaus Schwab, the Rothschilds, Fauci, Whitty and many more who will all eventually be placed in the pantheon of history's most evil. If virtue signalling Fauci, dead-eyed Whitty, Pritsdown Ferguson and the rest have told the truth in the last two years then I'm afraid I missed it. Except, right at the start both Fauci and Whitty told us that there was no point in wearing a mask. The words virtue signalling were uttered. That was certainly the truth.

I have believed since the start of this coup that Whitty, not Boris Johnson, is running the UK. We must not forget his links to Gates. What a pity he has constantly refused to debate the issue with me. One hour of live, network TV and this would all be over. These innocuous, unelected advisers are among the most dangerous individuals in the world – they want to take our freedom and humanity.

We cannot ever expect our enemies to change or see the light. And we cannot wait for those collaborating with them to see sense. Every day that passes our predicament becomes scarier. The mask wearers – suffering from their narrow minded commitment to mindless authority and mask attachment syndrome - become more fearful and more compliant as the lies continue.

Time is running out. We have to move very quickly to win this war.

Christmas comes with many fears this year – not least, that this may be the last Christmas any of us will be allowed to celebrate. Our enemies want to destroy religion, along with small businesses, home owners, savers, entrepreneurs and the self-employed. You'd have to be blind not to see how things are developing. If we don't win this war this could be the last Christmas we are allowed. At no other time in history has humanity been in so much danger. It's no surprise that lots of people have more than one Christmas tree in their homes this year. We have three.

In the New Year we will have to fight harder than ever because the future is approaching very fast. Energy and food prices will soar. There will be power cuts. Home ownership costs will soar and rental costs – when rentals are available – will also soar. Bank branches will continue closing and cash will be demonised. Inflation will soar, there will be many bankruptcies and millions will lose homes or businesses. The purpose is control. Read my book 'Endgame' if you want to see where we're heading if we don't defeat the enemy.

In 2022, there will be more lockdowns because if you have your enemy cowering in ditches you keep bombarding them.

They want to divide us – women against men and vice versa – black against white, young and old, anti and pro global warming.

I would not be surprised to see more bans on alcohol – which they claim is a cause of global warming – and curfews for women to protect them from the evil men who prowl our streets. Strict rules on mask wearing, no alcohol and curfews for women.

Deaths will soar in the UK because the world's most socialised medical care system, now operating in a communist country, has been deliberately destroyed and is unfit for purpose. But the deaths will be deliberate – caused by cancer, heart disease and so on.

There will be more jabs – in the end they may come every month.

In Africa there will be hundreds of millions of deaths and no one outside Africa will notice.

Investment companies and pension funds won't invest in fossil fuels or mines – even though we are going to need oil and metals for decades – and they are increasingly wary of putting money into defence companies.

You could argue – and I would agree with you – that not investing in defence is a good thing. There is a real chance that we in the west won't make any more destroyers or jets because of the oil they consume.

But here's a thought. Do you think China, North Korea and Russia will stop spending money on arms? No, I don't either. Won't that make things a little lopsided?

And there will be talk of a new one world government which many – fed up with their own government – will welcome. Around the world, they want us to hate our governments – and that's working well – so that we happily accept the One World Government they've been planning for decades.

All that to look forward to in 2022. But, remember, the desperation is a sign that we are winning.

But meanwhile, we should use the Christmas season to recharge our batteries so that we're ready to face the threats ahead. We are the army and we must work together. We must not be put off by those whose minds are closed or by those who are too frightened to accept the truth.

Slavery was abolished many years ago. The very idea of mandatory or compulsory vaccination assumes that the State has ownership of our bodies and that's enslavement. I've been warning about mandatory vaccinations for over a decade because governments everywhere have been desperate to introduce it.

Maybe the people who have been tearing down statues which have historical links to slavery might like to turn their attentions to a frightening threat; a clear and present danger.

There have been some upsides to the last two years. We've learned whom we can trust and who we cannot trust. We have made good like-minded friends and colleagues.

The Establishment, ever more desperate, has been busy. Every honest doctor and scientist in the world is now classified by Wikipedia as a conspiracy theorist. Even the Wikipedia site relating to the award winning movie of my novel Mrs Caldicot's Cabbage War has been deliberately wrecked. The film had terrific reviews, is regularly shown on TV and has over 1000 reviews at nearly 5 stars on Amazon but Wikipedia now shows only a BBC one star review. My name has been removed from the summary box so that I'm not included on other derivative sites and the only time I'm mentioned as the author, I'm described, inevitably, as a conspiracy theorist. The aim, yet again, is to destroy my reputation and income. It just goes to show how terrified the establishment is of the truth – Wikipedia is, of course, corrupt and a tool of the establishment; it is a disinformation site, spreading misinformation and defending the indefensible. I still find it astonishing that Wikipedia editors will remove the lies from a page if you give them money. Then when it gets changed back they want more money to tidy it up again. I'm sure that sort of behaviour used to be against the law.

Most of what I do is very effectively suppressed and, of course, I'm banned from all social media. I was never allowed to join Facebook or Twitter. Facebook told me I was a threat to their community. And I was thrown off LinkedIn. Four of my books have been banned – though they're now free on my websites. And so on and so on.

If we were to lose this war it won't just be because of governments or mainstream media such as the awful BBC – where the entire staff should be eternally ashamed for betraying the people – it will be because of the people who claim to be on our side but who have moaned and whinged mercilessly about their pet theories, who don't see the big picture, who don't understand that we are fighting a war for our lives. Most of them never actually do anything useful themselves – they just hide behind silly names.

Let 2022 be the year when we turn the fear around. We are winning this war and you and I can't be bullied or bought. Let's make them afraid of us. Our opponents are witless, humourless, greedy, cowardly and grotesque. Think about them. How can we allow these sad, ugly, cryptorchid and sorry souls to defeat us? Let's make 2022 the year when we rattle their cages and send them running for cover. We can gain our strength from their evil, their cruelty, their ruthlessness and their greed.

Remember: the people behind this war are terrified. They know the price they'll have to pay if they lose. They can't try again in their lifetimes. And they know as well as I do that we're winning. They're losing the propaganda war.

Best wishes for happy Christmas from all of us here – that's my wife and myself, a large family of squirrels, half a dozen tame pheasants and an assortment of other examples of rural wildlife. We won't be getting jabbed, we won't be social distancing, we won't be wearing masks and we won't be obeying any other silly rules and regulations. We don't know anyone in the Government so we won't be going to any raucous parties – not our style anyway. I found it alarming not that the party goers had parties – they knew there was no risk – but that they were so stupid they took photos of themselves doing it. They actually said they weren't parties but meetings because they were wearing suits and talking and drinking alcohol because they'd been working so hard. I find it interesting that it is illegal to drive while drinking – quite right too – but apparently legal to drink while running the country.

I suggest that in future all parties be renamed meetings. Birthday meetings. Office meetings. And so on. Weddings and funerals can be relabelled as meetings too.

The last party I went to, I was six-years-old. All the others who were at the party are dead now so parties are clearly very dangerous affairs and best avoided. It must have been the trifle.

My wife and I will, however, probably eat too much Christmas pudding, we'll enjoy log fires and we'll pull our crackers with reckless abandon.

Ya, boo sucks and humbug to the spoilsports who think they can take away this or any future Christmas.

Don't forget to watch my friend Dr Colin Barron's amazing videos which are always fantastic and often incredibly funny. And visit his website www.colinbarron.co.uk

Read www.theLightpaper.co.uk for all the news considered too truthful to print by the mainstream media – and please take a look at my column which has been there for a year now. Visit www.astandinthepark.org which will give advice on how and where to stand in a park and make sure you visit www.earthnewspaper.com which contains all the honest news fit to print.

Please visit my own websites www.vernoncoleman.org and www.vernoncoleman.com. www.vernoncoleman.com is more old fashioned but contains hundreds of articles on animal issues, politics and much else in addition to health. You can find free books on both sites and brand new stuff is added every weekday. There will be new material most days over the holidays. There are hundreds of original articles to read and, of course, the feature detailing vaccine damage is updated every week.

I'm exhausted, drained, suffering from burn out, free floating paranoia, post traumatic stress disorder, battle fatigue and shell shock so this is my last video for a while. I have a bottle of malt whisky which needs testing to make sure it hasn't gone off.

The whingers and moaners and nit-pickers will be pleased to know that the constant storm of abuse was dispiriting for a while.

I'll continue to put material on my websites nearly every day. I hope you'll visit – you're always welcome. We're open 24 hours a day and there is no need for masks, social distancing or hand sanitiser. My old videos – around 300 of them will still be around. They're all still accurate.

I recently recorded four videos which should have ended this war. I've written thousands of articles for the national press and I once had three columns at once in national daily newspapers and I can promise you that the contents of any one of those videos would have made the front page of any newspaper back when they printed news. I was disappointed that so few people watched the video on the jabs causing brain damage. That video alone could have ended this war if enough people had seen it.

I want to take a little time to write a book I've been wanting to do for some time. Far more important, I want to look after my wife who has worked so hard and who is also exhausted. We've been researching, writing and recording videos and we haven't had a day's holiday since February 2020. And prior to that she was recovering from surgery and radiotherapy.

We all need to pray for the truth to be shared by the many, not just the few. Whatever your religion you need to pray because the people running this fraud respect only lies but, in the way that vampires fear sunlight, they fear the truth – it is your government's greatest enemy and our only weapon.

Finally, although it may feel like it at times, please remember that you are not alone. More and more people are waking up and once they are awake they don't go back to sleep. – which means our numbers are growing daily.

If we are going to win this war then we have to fight hard and with determination and passion and the truth – and humour which the enemy hates and doesn't understand. Remember, this is primarily a propaganda and media war and we have to try to reach outside to educate people who are incapable of thinking for themselves. We need to fight on the simple issues such as the pointlessness and danger of the jabs.

This war will be won not in parliaments or the law courts but in the hearts and minds of the people, you and I, who know that this is a wicked propaganda war. We have been betrayed by most politicians, journalists, lawyers, judges and doctors but although they may have the money we have the belief, the love, the truth and the will to win.

Distrust the government, avoid mass media and fight the lies.

Thank you for all the lovely comments and messages.

And thank you for watching an old man in a chair.

If you're looking for pure escapism over the holidays, you might like to try Vernon Coleman's 15 book series about a young, country doctor in England. The first book in the series is *The Young Country Doctor Book 1: Bilbury Chronicles*. It's available as a paperback, an eBook and an audio book. It contains nothing whatsoever about covid.
